

EPA A.I.R.E. Reflection Questions

These questions can be used in several different ways-any of which are perfectly acceptable. These can be used to instigate a group or class discussion, break students into groups to answer questions then report out, as a written response, or as on-going journaling. Any use that works well for your students is completely acceptable.

1. Why is it important to be involved in your local community?
2. How can people make a difference in their community by getting more involved?
3. Name some ways you could be involved in your community now? As a teenager? As an adult?
4. Why is clean air important?
5. Do you think that our society is doing a good job at keeping the air clean? Why or why not?
6. What changes could our society make to have cleaner air?
7. Do you think that adults should take steps to ensure that the air is clean for future generations? Why or why not?
8. How does polluted air affect people, animals, and plants?
9. What do you think the air quality was like in 1750? Why?
10. Would you like to complete other projects that help to improve your community? Why or why not?